'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Hundreds of friends of Rev. and Mrs. C. G. Lindemann will rejoice to learn that Rev. Lindemann has been returned to the pulpit of the Wesley Methodist church.

Rev. Lindemann has been identified with church work in Richmond for a number of years.

During that time, he has made a host of friends in the city.

Both he and Mrs. Lindemann are known by everybody in the city and are well liked.

At the same time, Rev. F. H. Prince, the pastor of the First Methodist church will leave the local pulpit to assume his new duties at the Community Methodist church in Albany.

The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. F. H. Prince will regret their leaving the city.

The city extends a welcome to Rev. R. L. Ruth of Berkeley, who will fill the pulpit at the First Methodist church.

All church goers of the city will unite in wishing Rev. Ruth much success in his new pastorate.

Motorists of Richmond and the bay region are sitting back in their easy chairs and telling the gasoline stations to continue their price cutting war.

At some stations in the city gasoline is being retailed at 15 to 17 cents a gallon.

And this means that many of the local drivers will go further on their vacation trip.

They don't care what caused the gasoline cut or why—but they do hope that this "war" keeps up.

The Richmond boys at the Y. M. C. A. camp are enjoying themselves, according to word received here from our correspondent, Jimmie Smith.

A vacation out in the open away from the city is perhaps one of the finest things that a boy may enjoy.

It was down at the Flag Day services last Saturday at Memorial Park.

A father and his two sons were sitting on a bench, enjoying the program. One son

SAN DIEGO, June 17.—UP—William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, took off from Rockwell field at 5:15 p. m. (PCT) today on the return lap of a Jacksonville, Fla., to San Diego flight.

The aviators made a perfect take off after being delayed about 15 minutes due to minor repairs necessary on the motor. The plane was functioning perfectly at the take-off.

The trip to San Diego from Jacksonville was made in 13 hours 55 minutes and 30 seconds, the Lockheed plane averaging approximately 165 miles per hour all the way without a stop.

See Success.

The fliers expressed confidence that their return flight would be equally successful. They planned to send and receive radio messages during the trip.

The two intrepid aviators swooped out of a low ceiling of clouds shortly before 4 p. m. Pacific coast time today to complete a record-breaking flight from Jacksonville, Fla., to Rockwell field, San Diego, in 13 hours 55 minutes 30 seconds official time.

CAMP PIONEER, Russian River, June 17.—Camp Pioneer has settled back into its regular schedule of swimming, hiking, baseball and campfires.

Willie Hillier and Bill Powell were added to the camp personnel yesterday. Hillier is taking over the command of tent 2, while Powell will share the leadership in tent 3 with Stanley Paulsen.

The boys will leave camp tomorrow afternoon immediately after lunch. They will sleep at the peak, and return to camp by noon on Wednesday. The hike covers approximately 15 miles. The ascent of the mountain is known as a stiff climb, and there are prospects of a tired camp on Wednesday afternoon.

The inhabitants of tent 2 yesterday took the baseball team of tent 3 down the line with a score of 7 to 2. The victors had the balance of power in their hands during almost the entire contest. Willie Hillier did nice chucking for tent 2, with Louis Ball receiving. Steve Rusich twirled for tent 3, with Bob Miller on the receiving end.

AUTO HOME ARRIVES IN CITY AFTER NATION TRIP

By MAYNARD C. YOUNG
"All the comforts of home while traveling" is the motto of M. Grant Winters, of Ocala, Fla., who has arrived at the home of his son, H. G. Winters, 1826 Barrett avenue, after a motoring excursion of more than 3000 miles.

Winters was accompanied by his wife, and enroute to Richmond the couple stopped in Colorado where they picked up Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Conger, Mrs. H. G. Winters' parents.

The two couples made the trip in what is claimed to be one of the most complete traveling automobiles in existence.

The machine is outfitted with all the comforts of a house, including two full size beds, two wardrobes, three or four chairs, table with settees on either side, electric lights, ice box, stove, shaving cabinet, medicine cabinet, hot water heater, chemical lavatory, curtains over the windows and innumerable stowaways for clothes.

In the drivers' compartment is a comfortable seat for the operator and an easy chair for his companion. Above the steering wheel are two small compartments, one an extra, and the other used for a shaving cabinet. On the side above the driver's seat is a completely equipped medicine cabinet, and on the other side of the car, in front, is a stove and ice box. On either side of the car are two full size beds, which fold up into the side of the car, leaving it a normal width for travel. The beds have regular springs and feather mattresses.

In front of the beds are the wardrobes and in the center of the compartment is the table, which is as large when unfolded as a regulation dining table. Two benches, which open for spart articles, are riveted to the floor on either side of the table. In the rear is the lavatory and two easy chairs, and over each wheel are two more compartments for clothing. An electric light in the center of the rear compartment furnishes light enough to read comfortably from.

Winters is planning to remain in Richmond for three or four days, while he investigates some property of his in San Francisco, after which he will motor back to Florida, leaving Mr. and Mrs. Conger in Colorado.

MEET HELD ON YACHT HARBOR

The proposed yacht base on the Richmond inner harbor is practically a certainty, according to a discussion held at the Hotel Carquinez last night by prominent boatmen of the eastbay.

The meeting was called by Fred D. Parr of the Parr-Richmond Terminal corporation, and Commodore George Lauritzen of the Richmond outboard motor club.

The project was discussed pro and con with the ultimate decision that as San Francisco and Oakland had made the yacht harbor a success, so could Richmond.

Parr called the meeting to order and Lauritzen and Charles Engle of the Parr-Richmond Terminal corporation acted as chairmen of the meeting.

It was brought out at the meeting that Richmond had a good location for a yacht harbor as either of the other cities in the bay region, and that a harbor could be made that would be a credit and an asset to the city.

P. M. Sanford of the chamber of commerce, and Lauritzen will select a committee of 10 to start active work on planning the harbor. The committee will be composed of five members of the chamber of commerce and five other men.

Among those present at the meeting were Fred Parr of the Parr-Richmond Terminal corporation; G. B. Lauritzen of the Richmond outboard motor club; Larkin Young, of the American Trust company, Edward Veitch of Oakland, H. P. Lauritzen of Richmond; Rule Cross of Richmond; P. V. S. Baker of the Oakland Yacht club; Dr. Francis Kent of the Richmond Outboard Motor club; James A. McVittie, Richmond city manager; A. Newman of the Parr-Richmond Terminal corporation; Charles Engle of the Parr-Richmond corporation; Harry Moran of the Parr-Richmond Terminal corporation; E. E. Bull of the chamber of commerce; P. M. Sanford of the chamber of commerce, and Charles Green of Richmond.

The Political Cauldron

Before Saturday arrives, indications point to a political explosion.

The cauldron has been covered with a double-thick lid, it has been riveted and double riveted, and yet the seething is so great that the political gases are escaping. They cannot be controlled, the lid is apt to blow off any minute.

If this takes place the people of the county will be presented with a picture of underground political activity that has never been presented to them before.

This picture, if shown, will be one of crossing and double crossing, of the prostitution of public office, of the offers of deputyships, of treachery, of men having been encouraged to run for office and then slaughtered as cold-bloodedly as a gangster shoots down his victim.

It will tell of the crucifying of men now held in high esteem, of the offers to sell their birthright for a mess of pottage.

If conditions develop along the lines they are now running, the RECORD-HERALD will probably be forced to unfold this sordid political tale to the public. It undoubtedly will hurt, but on the other hand it will save some men, prevent them from hanging their heads in shame, and keep them from being branded as political traitors.

Men who have the respect of the people cannot sell out their friends, and still expect to maintain that respect.

If the picture is unfolded some may be smeared, others who have political ambitions will be saved. There will be a future for them.

HEMPLER TO BE HEAD COACH

By an unanimous vote of the Richmond school board yesterday, the appointment of Maj. Ivan Hill as city recreational director was confirmed. Maj. Hill will succeed the late W. L. Seawright, who was killed when struck by an automobile some months ago.

Major Hill's position as head coach and athletic director of the Richmond Union high school will be filled by Phillip Hempler, former assistant to Hill, according to W. T. Helms, superintendent of schools.

Helms announced that he had received Hempler's contract through the mail yesterday, and that Hempler had consented to take the post.

Two resignations and one leave of absence were acted upon yesterday at the meeting. Miss Jeanette Swigert and Mrs. Theima Lee resigned and Mrs. August Ritzenthaler took a leave of absence.

Mrs. Swigert was on the Woodrow Wilson faculty. Mrs. Lee on the Lincoln faculty and Mrs. Ritzenthaler on the Grant staff.

The vacancies will be filled by teachers returning from leaves of absence. Miss Ehlert, Mrs. Loran Whitlock and Miss Gladys Denby.

The paint bids, which have been called for the Lincoln and Washington schools, will be opened at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, according to Helms.

KING WILL HANG SEPT. 12

EUREKA, June 17.—UP—Clarence L. King, 27, of Racine, Wisconsin, was today sentenced to hang at San Quentin prison on September 12, for the murder of Minnie "Mickey" McCoy, his paramour.

Sentence was pronounced by Superior Judge Harry W. Falk.

King was convicted by a jury of ten men and two women last Friday.

King heard the death sentence pronounced with the same calmness that has characterized his attitude throughout the trial.

His bride of a few months, Eunice Pardee King, of Corvallis, Oregon, showed great emotion however, when the sentence was read.

Judge Falk denied the motion of Marc Morrison, King's attorney, for a continuance, prior to pronouncing sentence, and also refused a plea for a new trial.

Morrison has not determined whether or not to appeal the verdict.

The "Redwoods murder," as the girl's slaying was termed, excited coast-wide interest.

From the time that the girl's body was discovered in a redwood grove north of here in March, until King's capture in Portland, Ore. some two weeks later, peace officers of several states joined in the search for the slayer.

The mystery surrounding the case was complicated for some time by the failure of authorities to identify the girl. Several false leads were followed until her true identity was revealed by state fingerprint experts.

THE WILL TO WIN

The habit of saving money and regularly putting it in the bank yields more than a pile of dollars. It gives us the will to win. It teaches us to value the time and thought and energy we had to expend to earn the money. It puts plan and purpose into our lives, increases endeavor and assures success. It gives us confidence. And in these days of keen competition it takes ability and courage and confidence to win. The man who is worried and fretted hasn't a chance.

The man who has money in the bank has no fear of any other man or of any situation. He has confidence in himself and this inspires the confidence of others. The possession of money earned, saved and in the bank gives a man character. Character gives him confidence, and confidence gives him the power to conquer.

Savings are safe in the bank. There is no substitute.

Taller Office Building Seen

CLEVELAND—With the advent of artificial sunlight systems through research by scientists and engineers, skyscrapers will be built even higher than they are at present.

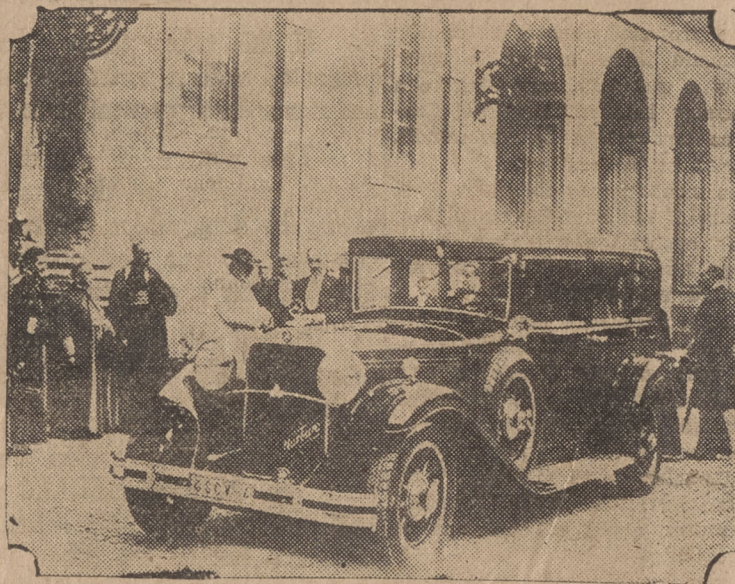

This is the opinion of Rudolph P. Miller, first president of the Building Officials' Conference of America which met here recently. Miller says there is practically no limit to the height of skyscrapers because cheaper, stronger and lighter building materials continually are being developed.

Miller agreed with Thomas A. Edison's statement that height limitation of buildings will be reached only when the congestion of elevators becomes so great that the higher floors will no longer be desirable.

Better Business Seen For Power Industry Of U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—UP—Opinions that better business is the outlook for members of the power industry were pronounced here today as the 53rd annual convention of the National Electric Light Association opened.

Included among those who had optimistic statements to make were P. S. Young of Newark, N. J.; James B. Black, vice-president of the North American company; D. C. Green, of New York; W. A. Jones, vice-president of the association; Edwin Gruhl of New York; Franklin C. Griffith of Portland, Ore.; Earl Whitethorne, of New York, and Thomas Kennedy of New York, all executives of large companies.

Matthew S. Sloan, of the New York Edison company, president of the association, said in his opening address, that latest information indicates an expenditure of $1,04,000,000 by the light and power industry for the extension of service facilities.

Commenting upon the utility issue, Sloan said:

"What is needed now and for the future is not heat or hate or demagoguery, but the application of economic principles through laws protecting the public without penalizing the utilities. Laws which will command and reward the confidence of the investor, without robbing the consumer."

Progress of the industry under state regulation was related by M. A. Harrison, vice-president of H. M. Byllesby & Co., of Chicago, one of the prominent speakers of the afternoon, and he also sounded a note of caution.

"Regulation of public utilities by state commissions, which at first seemed a handicap, has been stamped as a commendable achievement in public administration," Morrison said.

THREE SECRET PROBES OF GANGSTERS

CHICAGO, June 17.—UP—The Lingle murder case began to sound like a detective thriller tonight with secret officers, secret committees, and secret investigations into the who and the why of the assassination of Alfred Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

Three separate secret investigations, one by the police, one by the "secret ten" of the state's attorney, and one by the "secret 16" of the association of commerce, were started into the slaying eight days ago of Lingle.

John A. Swanson, state's attorney, and his chief investigator, Pat Roche, took ten of their best detectives, rented a secret office in the Loop, and started delving into the numerous ramifications of the murder. Roche said he hoped to obtain evidence enough to present to the grand jury.

The reorganized police department, under a new commissioner, John H. "Hardboiled" Alcock, also was pursuing an undercover probe of the slaying, while the commerce association's "secret 16" started the third investigation into the case.

The murder, meanwhile brought an editorial tilt between the Chicago American, afternoon newspaper, and two Baptist ministers who charged that some Chicago newspapermen were "crooks among crooks."

The Rev. George D. Allison and Dr. Benjamin Otto, leading the ministerial fight against gangland, charged that "they (reporters) have a large amount of knowledge concerning criminals and the ways of the underworld that they hold out from the police. They are not better than the crooks themselves."

"If there is any evidence that any member of any Chicago newspaper's staff is a 'crook among crooks,' the editor of that paper wants to know it," said the American.

Solons Beat Seattle In Night Game

SACRAMENTO, June 17.—UP—The league leading Sacramento Senators jumped three and a half games ahead of Los Angeles tonight when, with Ray Keating hurling shut-out ball and allowing only four hits, they defeated Seattle 3 to 0.

Zahniser started on the mound for Seattle but was hit freely and had to give way to Kunz near the end.

Until the fifth inning it was a pitchers' duel but in that inning the Senators scored a run. They added two more in the seventh and eighth.

It was the first night game for the Indians, which might have accounted for their weakness at the bat to some degree.

Neither team made an error.

Prince Studies Art Of Fencing

STOCKHOLM.—A royal fencer of skill and daring is Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, oldest son of the Crown Prince and heir apparent to the throne. The young prince, a student at Upsala university, has been training intensely to be able to enter the forthcoming Swedish fencing championship contests.

His teacher is Captain A. Lundstrom, one of the best fencers in the Swedish army. The prince was first instructed in using the foil, but showed such aptitude that Captain Lundstrom soon let his pupil train with regulation cavalry sabre. The prince also is a seasoned horseman, having won last summer a number of prizes in steeplechases and derbies in Sweden.

Fish For Coal Off Maine Coast

PORTLAND, Me.—Queerest of Portland's waterfront characters are those who fish for coal.

In old, leaky dories, they slowly glide along, dragging for the fuel that drops into the harbor from colliers and the edges of wharves. When their crafts are loaded to the gunwales, they row to some cache where they store the coal and sell it to other boatmen.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—UP—The Los Angeles Angels regained second place of the Pacific coast league today by trouncing the San Francisco Seals, 9 to 1. Their advantage over the Seals was one thousandth of one percent in the revised standings.

Bacht was on the mound for Los Angeles and allowed only five scattered hits. The score was tied until the sixth inning, when the Angels started an avalanche of runs.

Oakland beat Portland, 4 to 1, although the Beavers pounded out twice as many hits. The Oaks had only five hits.

The San Francisco Missions only gained five hits off the offerings of Hulvey, Hollywood hurler, and the Seals won, 4 to 3.

Mrs Langdon In Collapse During Trial

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—UP—Mrs. Helen Langdon, wife of Harry Langdon, motion picture comedian suffered another collapse late today while testifying for her present husband at trial of a $11,500 suit brought by Thomas J. O'Brien, her former mate.

Friends of Mrs. Langdon said she was suffering from heart strain evidently brought on by several days of strenuous questioning during which she was forced to reveal many intimate details of her life with O'Brien, her divorce and her marriage to the actor.

O'Brien is seeking to collect on three notes for $11,500 given him by Langdon with $15,000 in cash to forestall a $250,000 heart balm suit O'Brien threatened to file against Langdon for asserted alienation of his wife's affections.

Mrs. Langdon denied Langdon stole her love and the comedian contended he paid money to O'Brien to escape notoriety at the time.

North China Troops Capture Airplane Base

PEKING, June 17.—UP—An engagement in which northern cavalry was reported to have captured the Nationalistic government's airplane base east of Weichai, in Honan province, was reported by Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang today.

The "Christian general's" headquarters telegraphed the United Press that his Kuomintang, or "people's army," cavalry unit had surrounded Nanking's principal air base, taking 11 airplanes and a quantity of ammunition.

The telegram was confirmed by foreign observers.

The horsemen, members of Feng's famous "Big Sword" cavalry, then went on a rampage, burning and hacking the airplanes, which included several recent purchases.

The report said the governments' air forces along the Lungshai front were put entirely out of commission by this feat. They recently had attacked Feng's forces frequently in northern Honan, far behind the infantry lines.

PARIS.—Roger Vincent, who has already pedaled his way across the English Channel, hopes to ride a bicycle across the Atlantic ocean next summer. He rides a hydro-cycle, which is an ordinary bicycle mounted on pontoons and fitted with a waterwheel operated by the pedals. He can make up to 10 miles an hour and the frail craft is never in danger of capsizing for the pontoons are filled with cork and weigh enough to keep the bike up-right.

SKY HAWK TO BE SHOWN AT FOX

Billy Bevan, noted screen comedian, has a mighty dual capacity. One is for work: his record of some 200 comedies in the past 10 years attests to that; the other is for beer.

In an uproarious sequence in "The Sky Hawk" this all talking picture of birdmen and Zepelin raiders, Bevan is in a pub when an air raid begins. The establishment is promptly emptied of all customers except Bevan, who improves the shining hour by tilting the contents of all the glasses in the place down his arid throat.

By actual count, Bevan drained just 24 partially filled steins during the filming of the scene—but as it was an especially hot day when the picture was taken his job was the envy of several scores of extras and electricians watching thirstily as the cameras whirled.

"The Sky Hawk" is a Fox Moviephone special which will show at the Fox-California theater tomorrow and Friday.

John Garrick Helen Chandler and Gilbert Emery have the leading roles in a surprisingly large and able cast. John G. Blystone directed this Fox Moviephone production an adaptation of Llewellyn Hughes' magazine story, "Chap Called Bardell." Hughes also is responsible for the adaptation and dialogue having collaborated with Campbell Gullan, stage director.

Also on the program is a comedy entitled, "He Trumped Her Ace."

Ziegfeld Film Scores Hit At Fox-California

Ziegfeld's "Glorifying the American Girl" opened at the Fox-California theater yesterday in all the gorgeous splendor that one would expect from any production, stage or screen, bearing the magic name of Florenz Ziegfeld.

With many of its spectacular scenes reproduced in full colors by the improved Technicolor process with scores of stunningly beautiful girls in the singing and dancing ensembles, with lavish settings with comedy, drama and a heart-grIPPING story this moving panorama of womanly pulchritude moves across the all talking silver-screen in a continual parade of highly absorbing amusement.

Mary Eaton, dancing star of Ziegfeld shows on Broadway, and lately the leading woman in "The Cocoanuts" with the Four Marx Brothers on the talking screen, is the ambitious young dancer who finally makes good and becomes a glorified beauty with Ziegfeld following a series of glamorous experiences. She is adequately supported by Dan Healy, Edward Crandall, Olive Shea, Kale Renard and Sarah Edwards—all of them well-known Broadway performers.

In a special revue scene—a show within the big show—audiences are treated to the inimitable performances of Eddie Cantor, who appears in a hilarious skit; Helen Morgan, who sings a typical blues song; and Rudy Vallee, who croons in the best Vallee manner, accompanied by his band.

It is all too gorgeous to attempt a description in this limited space. But it is a safe bet that anyone who sees and hears "Glorifying the American Girl" will be a Ziegfeld fan from then on. It is perfectly marvelous entertainment.

Also on the program is a Talkatone comedy entitled, "Wise Flies."

LONDON.—Professional billiard players are paid as much as 55 pounds a week and a percentage of the gate money if the receipts are good, when playing.

SENSIBLE WAY TO LOSE FAT

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

As a result instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do, and need to do to keep you in good condition.

Then watch the pounds slide off! Kruschen Salts are the up-to-date Fountain of Youth. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot or cold water tomorrow morning and every morning—they're tasteless that way, and if they don't change your whole idea about reducing, go back and get the small price you paid for them. Get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—lasts 4 weeks—at La Moine Drug Co.—or any progressive druggist anywhere in the world.

ROBERT ELLIS MAKES HIT AT RICHMOND

Imagine a man "having an affair" with his wife!

Or even being accused of such a thing.

That's what happens to Robert Ellis in "Tonight at Twelve," Universal's sensational and daring all talking picture which closes tonight at the Richmond theater.

In real life Ellis is the husband of Vera Reynolds and in the picture he appears as the husband of Madeline Seymour. Vera Reynolds, in the picture, is the wife of Hallam Cooley.

The story revolves around the discovery by Mrs. Seymour of a note which her husband (Ellis) has written which she believes is meant to arrange a rendezvous with another woman. She accuses one of three women of being that woman and one of these three is Vera Reynolds.

"Tonight at Twelve" marks the first appearance of Ellis and his wife on the talking screen together. Ellis will be remembered for his portrayal of "Steve Crandall," the suave racketeer in Universal's production of "Broadway." The picture also marks the return of Miss Reynolds to the screen after her marriage to Ellis.

"Tonight at Twelve" has an all-star cast headed by Ellis and Madge Bellamy; it being Miss Bellamy's first picture since her starring role in "Mother Knows Best." Others in the cast are Margaret Livingston, Norma Trevor, Mary Moran, George Lewis, Josephine Brown and Don Douglas.

RATE FIGHT TO BE TAKEN TO COMMISSION

The campaign of the chamber of commerce to secure rates for this city to the northwest comparable with the rates accorded other cities in the bay region will be fought out before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

This was the decision yesterday after the chamber's traffic committee had failed in its negotiations with the carriers. T. M. Carlson, one of the directors of the chamber, had been authorized to file the complaint and announced yesterday that he will take this action at once.

Richmond suffers a disadvantage of 36 cents a ton over San Francisco, Oakland and Alameda in shipping goods to the interior points of the northwest. This differential is due to the division of rates which is in effect between the rail and water carriers in that territory, and the chamber of commerce therefore negotiated with the carriers in an endeavor to bring about an adjustment. These negotiations have been carried on for months under the leadership of W. W. Scott of the traffic committee, the last step being an ultimatum to S. J. Henry in Seattle, secretary of the conference, that a complaint would be filed with the commission unless action was taken favoring Richmond. The reply was unsatisfactory, with the result that Carlson will file the complaint, and if the matter comes to a formal hearing will go to Seattle or Portland to handle the case.

The complaint was filed jointly by the chamber of commerce and the city of Richmond and names more than a score of rail and water carriers who serve the northwest territory.

It is believed that an adjustment of the rate putting Richmond on a parity with the other bay ports will bring about a great increase in shipping from Richmond.

Servicing with Scott on the chamber's traffic committee are Frank M. Chandler, Harry T. Raup, H. C. Uddenburg, Harry C. Gunnison, William Dooling, A. A. Moran, Fred Adams, Frank B. Morehouse, William Cuneo, James A. Todd, George A. Pell, Herbert Adams, Frank Kales, E. G. Ryder and H. W. Klein. "It is rumored," said Carlson, "that the discrimination against Richmond is influenced by the Hill interests of the northwest because of Richmond's opposition to the entrance of the Hill lines into the bay region. We do know that the opposition comes from the rail, not the water carriers."

There are three Hill lines in the North Pacific Coast Freight Bureau—the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and the Spokane, Portland and Seattle.

31,000 KILLED IN MACHINE CRASHES

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 17.—

The great number of motor vehicle accidents, resulting last year in the deaths of 31,000 persons and injuries to a million more, are due to a comparatively small number of causes and circumstances, virtually every one of which are preventable by the exercise of care and caution.

This is the finding of the third national conference on street and highway safety after a detailed study of the accident and fatality situation and the causes and circumstances that are involved.

Fifty-five percent of the automobile deaths in 1929 were of pedestrians who were run down by automobiles. Available statistics indicate also that more than one-half of the accidents involving motor vehicles and pedestrians took place at street crossings and intersections.

Figures Told

These figures give a definite indication also of the places where safety activities and measures can be concentrated with the prospect of the largest measure of result. With pedestrian-vehicle accidents, "crossing the street at intersections" where there were no traffic lights or signals, and "crossing the street between intersections," are the most productive of injuries and deaths among all of the causes and circumstances that lead to or involve accidents on the streets and highways.

Reports of the police departments and motor vehicle bureaus of some of the states and cities of the country, covering a large number of accidents in 1929, and carefully tabulated and analyzed, show that the number of injuries where the pedestrian was crossing with the traffic light or signal amounted to 4,244, while 27,681 were injured or killed while crossing against lights or signals or at crossings where there were no lights or signals. These figures are believed to reflect the general condition for the country as a whole, but covering only a fractional part of the accidents and casualties of this nature for the year.

The circumstances of pedestrian-vehicle accidents where the pedestrian was crossing the street at an intersection are found to be:

Many Hurt

No signal, 27,177; against the signal, 9,022; diagonally across the intersection, 1,482, and with the signal, 4,244. Of this number, 1,433 were killed.

Accidents due to crossing the street between intersections caused the injury or death of 27,332 persons, while "playing in the street" caused the injury or death of 17,193 others.

In the list of accidents involving the occupants of motor vehicles and not involving a pedestrian, are the following:

Exceeding the speed limit, 17,564, on the wrong side of the road, 16,342; did not have the right of way, 24,197; drove off the roadway 11,316; failing to signal 2,159; and cutting in 7,349. Among the 96,427 involved in these classifications, 3,320 were killed. Other causes, such as passing street cars, passing on curves and hills, improper turning and double parking, caused the injury or death of 10,808 persons.

Right of Way

Violation of the right of way was one of the most productive causes of vehicle accidents, caused in some instances by collisions between two cars where one of them had just previously been forced from the right of way by another car that escaped the accident.

The National conference on street and highway safety in its findings on this point, says:

"This demonstrates the need for adoption of definite right of way regulations as set forth in the uniform vehicle code, and, furthermore, that enforcement and education should be particularly directed to such regulation.

"Another most frequent cause of such accidents is driving on the wrong side of the highway. This likewise points to the need of enactment and enforcement of restrictive measures requiring operation on the right half of highways.

In a large number of motor vehicle accidents the operator drove off the highway and overturned. This illustrates the need for enforcement of standard rules of the road requiring safe practices and particularly the need for education of motorists as to the hazards incident to operation at excessive speeds on curves or narrow embankments, or excessive speed for the conditions as they exist."

Education Needed

Safety education and the strict enforcement of regulations and driving rules is the recommendation of the conference as a means of curbing and checking the accident and death toll.

The conference points out at the same time that the adoption of the uniform vehicle code by the states, and uniform traffic ordinances by municipalities, as sponsored and urged in the three sessions of the conference that have been held, will go far toward reducing the accident toll.

Primarily, the adoption of such laws and ordinances will, in the view of the conference and traffic experts of the country generally serve to eliminate confusion among both pedestrians and motorists, whether at home or away from home.

Legislatures of the various states at their next sessions will have before them the uniform vehicle code for consideration and adoption unless it is already in operation in a particular state. Cities likewise have the opportunity to amend their traffic ordinances to conform to the standardized and uniform provisions of the model traffic ordinance of the conference.

Spur Track To Be Completed Early In July

According to A. D. Schrader in charge of the railroad track division of the United Commercial company, the spur track to the Ford factory site on the Richmond inner harbor will be completed by the middle of July.

Upon receipt of telegraphic advice from the Chicago office that the contract had been awarded, the company started work on the track. The contract is now in the mails enroute west.

Schrader declared that the spur track would be ready as soon as the general contractors had been named and were ready to place material on the ground. The contract calls for a spur track 1800 feet long, extending from the inner harbor spur of the Southern Pacific company, along the factory building. Another spur will be located inside the building.

City Manager R. N. Norton of Monterey, his only opponent, received four votes.

Thompson will continue as the head of the chamber of commerce until his appointment becomes effective on July 15.

His salary was fixed at $7,000 per year.

TACOMA, Wash., June 17.—UP—Jacob Berman, indicted official of the Julian Petroleum corporation, was en route from McNeil Island penitentiary today to Los Angeles to testify in one of the cases growing out of the collapse of the institution. Local People Injured In Auto Crash

Following an automobile accident on the Redwood highway last Sunday, Mrs. L. J. Aikens, 332 Washington avenue and her seven year old daughter LaVon are recovering from painful cuts and bruises at the Cottage hospital.

According to Aikens, who was driving the car, he collided with a machine driven by E. Pelsarto of San Francisco. Neither Aikens nor Pelsarto were injured. Aikens declared that his party was going on a picnic when the accident occurred. He said that Pelsarto's car rounded a curve, narrowly missed going over a bank and crashed head-on into his machine.

The injured were taken to Garberville where they were treated. They were later moved to the Cottage hospital. Aiken's car was completely demolished.

Builders Sorry For Disturbances

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Some annoyance just can't be avoided. But builders of a new $1,500,000 project believe in consideration. They put up this sign on the site of the structure: "Our sincere apologies to our neighbors and the public for the unavoidable annoyance this construction work must occasion."

Announcement!

The Chamber of Commerce is pleased to announce the following facts:

Bids have been asked by the Ford Motor Company on the construction of the assembling plant in Richmond and contractors are now making their estimates.

The bids must be in the hands of the Ford officials in Detroit by June 23.

Contracts will be let as soon thereafter as the bids can be analyzed, probably within three weeks.

The firms which are to do the work will require a limited period to assemble their material on the ground and start construction. The construction should be under way early in August.

The plant will cost $5,000,000, will turn out 400 cars a day and will employ 2,000 persons. It is to be rushed to completion in nine months.

Therefore, by June 1 of 1931 this great new industry will be operating in Richmond.

Selection of Richmond by the Ford Company proves, if more proof were required, that this city offers unique industrial advantages to America's largest manufacturers.

SEPARATION

When you have gone, I shall not heed the sunsets
That splotch the drowsy world with crimson flame;
Earth will be dull as weary as the moments
Before you came.

I shall not hear the song of bird, nor listen
For cadence of the torrent from the hill,
Then, my torn heart will neither leap nor quiver:
So cold and still.

I shall not see earth's beauty when the dawn comes,
Nor see its glory when the evening falls—
And yet, time cannot blur your face, beloved,
When memory calls.

When you have gone, there will be loss and seeking;
And agony of silences; and pain
From little tender things, never forgotten—
Re-lived again!

Individuality and Clothes

IF THERE'S one trick about clothes which the 1930 Summer Girl ought to master, it's this: to look smartly in style without looking like everybody else.

Aren't we right? Here, it seems to us, is the gist and the kernel of all the good advice given to readers by Ann Roberts and Helen Worden, The Evening World's distinguished experts on fashions. Yet, looking about us, we realize that the advice cannot be disseminated too often by too many authorities. Over and over again, we see an otherwise fair female who is, in pre-typerized days, used to be called a "fair copy" of a couple of thousand other females. If, on the contrary, she tries to "look different," she may succeed only in looking freakish.

That is why we really think any woman interested in her own sex is doing missionary work by calling to feminine attention a new, comprehensive, most readable book about how to dress—"Individuality and Clothes," by Margaret Story, Mrs. Story, a lecturer, widely popular among clubwomen and college girls, as well as over the radio, has dedicated her work frankly and inclusively "TO WOMAN."

Her object, she explains, "is to tell every woman how to express her individuality in suitable dress, to accept the fact that clothes are vital!"

HOW to choose clothes for every age, type, occasion; how to suit colors to your coloring, design to your "line"; how to obtain value in fabrics, furs, laces, how to select the right accessories, how to dress healthfully and economically, as well as stylishly—these are only a few of the topics on which the author of "Individuality and Clothes" gives the clearest, most intelligent advice to women.

Her definition of being well-dressed is summed up in this pertinent paragraph: "If, when you have selected your costume, people look at you and think, 'What a pretty dress! I wonder how much it cost?' then you go to your 'line'; how to obtain value in fabrics, furs, laces, how to select the right accessories, how to dress healthfully and economically, as well as stylishly—these are only a few of the topics on which the author of 'Individuality and Clothes' gives the clearest, most intelligent advice to women."

This authority on style pays a deserved tribute to American women and their sensible dictum to the long skirt revival, "do not go back to the '20s, but go forward"—when she points out that "this woman of 1930, accepting only what pleases her from the fashions offered by centuries, has established her individuality and style by refusing to put aside her practical, even-hem-line, fourteen-inch-from-the-pavement street costume."

AMONG the most generally useful suggestions in Mrs. Story's book are those contained in her chapters analyzing what the "line" and the thin of it should wear. Here is a summary for the slouch:

"The slouch person should avoid all flared curves. She should shun round neck lines; circular designs in fabric, as huge roses; large round beads, short strands of beads; round earrings, round-top shoes with round buckles; large round dots on vests; many large round buttons."

"The slouch person must avoid broken lines, such as blouse and skirt of different colors, hose of contrasting color, hat of unmatching color, short sleeves which end at the elbow. The slouch woman should never perpetrate an emphasized waist-line. The slouch person must avoid any appearance of being too large for her clothes, such as the effects produced by light corsets, skirts, sleeves and tiny hats."

"Slenderness is emphasized by the long, vertical lines, by having hat and shoes—nose and gloves to match the costume in color. The diagonal carefully used is more effective in giving length of line than the vertical. Gladiators or narrow sashes with ends reaching to the bottom of the dress, always the color of the gown, are slenderizing. The pointed neck-line, the long sleeve, never tight, is best."

And this is Margaret Story's advice to the super-slender, thin woman:

"The woman who is thin and gaunt must have an acquiescence for graceful curves and must shun all angles. The really lanky woman must conceal all joints. Wrists, elbows, shoulder-blades, neck, thighs can thus be cleverly masked. This means no absence of sleeves, no elbow-length sleeves, no kimono blouses, no 'tailored' clothes."

"Too narrow shoulders can be broadened by yoke effects. Always the nestling high collar, of soft fur, or of the fabric of the dress, gives softness to the line from chin to ears. The waist-line can be enlarged by sashes of contrasting color. Those friends who pass while illusion awaits are popular. Well, why blame a father and what the well-dressed man should wear. But how academics this question may be in many a home is recognized by the author, who makes her would-be well-dressed male introduce his hints to his own sex with the wistful preface: 'It seems inevitably the case that when I feel I can have the clothes I want it is necessary to get screens for the house instead, or Mary needs an expensive orthodontist, or we all need a new car.'"

We ask any husband, father and householder—isn't it the truth?

Holding On to a Husband

"MY husband seeks the society of other women! I shall feel that I have been a failure as a wife."

A newly-wed made this remark. Some of her best friends told her that was an idiotic viewpoint, but just couldn't see why she should be so sure.

Holding a husband demands effort. Some women can accomplish this with very little effort, others must exert themselves considerably. Think over your own case. Are you falling in anything that your husband has a right to expect of his wife? If you are—well, why blame him?

Of course, no wife can expect to hold any higher position in the affection or consideration of her husband after marriage than she did before. If you were first in his heart and his thoughts when you became his wife you can remain in that position if you try. In most cases it is quite worth while trying.

"Oh, don't bother me. You know what that is."

"Why wouldn't I understand?"

"Because you are too little."

"No, I'm not; I'd understand."

"Well, psychology is a study of the laws of the mind—of how it works."

"Or how psychology works."

"No, how the mind works."

"How does it work?"

"Nobody knows."

"Why study psychology?"

"Oh, go to bed."

CA DISH CA DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

In these hot-weather days where efficiency in the kitchen is the first consideration, there is really little excuse nowadays for home canning. Jellies and jams and marmalades of all descriptions can be had at moderate cost:

Indeed, they can frequently be purchased for less than the actual expense of making them at home.

Where storage space is at a premium, as it is in most modern homes, it is much more sensible to have on hand only a small reserve of canned goods.

However, there are some who really enjoy cooking, and efficiency is not their first consideration. There is, for instance, the old English plum conserve which is quite unlike any other plum conserve in the market, and with sugar priced lower than it has been in a long time, the real housewife cannot resist putting up a few glasses of this delicious preserve. Served with cream cheese, it is a tempting hot-weather dessert, and it is delicious to serve with water, or French toast for breakfast.

OLD ENGLISH PLUM CONSERVE

2 pints plums, pitted
3 pounds sugar
1 lemon

Wash the plums, drain them well, pit them and pack them down so that you have two full pints. Slice the lemon very thin, and add it and the sugar to the plums. Let the fruit stand for two hours, or until the juice runs freely. Add the ginger and bring to a slow boil. Skim the top, and continue cooking slowly until twenty to twenty-five minutes. A little of the juice tested on a cold plate should jelly slightly. Pour in jelly glasses, or pint jars, and seal with paraffin.

Modernizing the Home

By Alma Zais

Dear Miss Zais: I am to be married soon and am furnishing one room, a bedroom in my mother's home. The room is large and sunny and is to be repainted. My preference in colors is blue and pink. I think one of the light woods for furniture would be better with a blue and pink room. What do you suggest? I shall be grateful for any suggestions for glass curtains, drapes, bed-spread, curtains for French doors, etc.

The windows are nine feet long and it is a real problem to make them appear shorter. They reach to the floor. What color would you suggest painting the walls, which are paneled? I think the woodwork should be the same color as the walls. Am I right?

Modern Schemes Demand Accessories in Harmony With Furniture

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

WHERE new homes are in the process of planning, and wedding gifts are almost due, there is always the important question of whether the accessories will be well chosen—or prove misfits to the end of their days.

Up-to-dateness depends so largely upon carrying out to the least detail the spirit of the decorative scheme being "in period" we call it when furnishings reflect the antique, "Biedermeier" it becomes when the room is a conventional or modern. But the vogue's latest expressions are so skillfully adapted that they give to period motifs a charming modern flavor, while to modernistic patterns they add a softening touch that makes them compatible with most in-between schemes.

To the bride we can safely leave the problem of the foundation scheme for her home—whether it shall be early American, English, Spanish or frankly modern. But once she has made her choice she should know the importance of ensembling the accessories, and see that this principle is carried out with consistency.

Another good point to remember is that of true artistic worth. To-day not even in the name of economy need we purchase furnishings that are incorrectly designed. From shelf paper to silver and china, on to curtain and upholstery fabrics, boudoir accessories and bath room fittings, we find patterns which bear the signature of well-known artists and craftsmen who have entered the commercial field and are creating wonderfully good things.

The point happens to be well illustrated for Miss R.'s problem by the dressing table in the photograph, where appointments designed by Burton Keeler follow the lines of the XVI patterns . . . while they are infused with a certain feeling of modernity. The Trianon, he has called his motif in honor of the period which is especially noted for its refinement. The plumes and flowers beloved by Marie Antoinette, and so highly prized by designers of her day, can be easily recognized in this pattern in which the artist has blended soft tones of green with blue and peach.

But suppose the room is not French, you are thinking? The story is just the same. For the dignified English room, or a scheme colonial,

AT THE MODERN HOMES EXPOSITION IN BOSTON, APPOINTMENTS WERE CHOSEN FOR A DAINTY FRENCH SCHEME. IN THE TRIANON PATTERN WE CAN FIND DIFFERENT MOTIFS FOR EACH ARTICLE ADD INTEREST TO MONTICELLO, A MODERN COLONIAL DESIGN.

The table might have appointments in a classic Adam pattern which Ben Nash has created in blue and buff; or the truly American design called Monticello, after the home of Jefferson. Continental blue, old ivory and gold are the colors which Ethel Parsons has used in working out this original design, which for more delicately decorated rooms is repeated in ivory and silver combined with Colonial blue and rose. For modern schemes Leonard, the French designer, has developed a charming pattern which he calls Fleuret . . . a spirited design in soft shades of azure blue or in ecru yellow and ivory.

So we might go on through the list of home furnishings and find for each department a utensil, a fabric, or a design which represents the work of modern artists as truly as the work of the old craftsmen expressed the thought of their day.

But we must get back to our problem, which concerns first the foundation scheme for Miss R.'s room, and which we are pleased to outline for her in two moods . . . one using the pink and blue of her preference, the other a more robust plan depending these colors for a colonial scheme . . . in case the groom likes a less feminine environment.

For either scheme—you will see by the diagram—the furniture may remain practically the same in point of utility and comfort, although it may differ in color and style.

For example, in the pink and blue room we might have pale peach walls with woodwork and panel moldings picked out in a slightly darker tone; a rich copper-colored carpet covering the pinkish cast that blends with peach; glass curtains of fresh tinted voile or organdie; over-curtains of glazed chintz in a floral pattern showing a good deal of turquoise blue upon a pea-colored ground. These could be made with an 18-inch valance to shorten the height of the windows, and it would be nice to bind both curtains and valance in turquoise taffeta.

Boudoir chairs may be slip-covered in the chintz; chaise longue, bench and slipper chair upholstered in turquoise cotton broadcloth, man's chair and stool in copper-colored cotton moire; bed-spreads of pale peach moire piped with turquoise—for in this case we do not want striking contrast against the delicate wall. If Miss R. is fond of light wood furniture, she will find French reproduction pieces in beechwood, which would be even more charming than walnut in this dainty scheme—and less expensive.

And now for the dressing table, the high point of interest which tells us more about the personal daintiness of the bride than any other piece of furniture. It may be draped in turquoise taffeta or pale flesh-tinted organdie bound with organdie. Either fabric will furnish a delightful background for toilet accessories designed in the French manner and accenting the soft blue-green tones used in the room.

The use of gold finished metal for manure tools is also a style note of the newer accessories . . . a fine touch which adds greatly to their richness and is particularly appropriate for our scheme.

On the blue chaise there will be

Details May Not Make the Room . . . But When Out of Key . . . They Mar It

By Jack Marcoux

cushions in peach and old ivory; on the wall, French prints and mirrors; soft flesh pink shades for the lamp shades and tucked in the corner to the left of the windows, a tiny French desk with a hanging shelf to hold oils of porcelain and a few colorful books. All in all . . . a room to delight the heart of most any beauty-loving bride.

The other scheme we have in mind is a Colonial room in deep blues and reds and ivory . . . is not less beautiful, although it is more substantial and homelike. Suppose we should have the walls in old ivory, with moldings brushed in dull gold; a very deep red rug on the floor; over-curtains of ivory chintz, having a great swaying worth pattern in deep blue and rose-red shades with a touch of gold. Mahogany furniture, of course, in the beautiful reddish tones found only in old pieces or good reproductions . . . a slender four-poster bed canopied in ivory voile edged with bill fringe; an old ivory spread; the chaise, bench and slipper chair in sprigged cotton broadcloth of medium blue; the man's chair and stool in Channel red or a Continental blue velvet. A mahogany dressing table and Colonial mirror this time, to furnish an authentic background for period toiletware as fitting as the French room.

With these two consistent plans to point the way, Miss R. and other new homemakers should be able to collect furnishings in perfect harmony . . . provided, of course, that when making their contributions the friends-and-family will also remember the vogue is for accessories in period or ensemble . . . and so avoid the pitfall which lies in wait for gift-givers who follow their own fancy instead of deferring to the taste of the bride.

THE INSIDE OF THE TONG WAR

(Hostilities have broken out again among the Chinese societies and this column has signed up J. Herman Seidlitz to act as its long war correspondent. Mr. Seidlitz needs no introduction to the public as an expert on Chinese affairs. He served as a spy in the Bozer uprising under the alias of Wan Dum Guy. He can speak Pekinese fluently and stand up on his hind legs and bark for food. Or drink. He was elected an honorary Outer Guard of the Hip Sing when he invented a musical flask as a symbol of the Hip Sing organization. Mr. Seidlitz has been a student of Chinese affairs for years, serving as American Consul at Hong Kong from 1876 to 1885, when he resigned to join the Civil War. Our readers should regard themselves as shot with luck that we have secured this eminent authority to give the inside story of the tong wars. J. Herman Seidlitz's first article appears to-day and another will follow shortly unless the editor is on his guard.)

THE INSIDE OF THE TONG WAR

By J. Herman Seidlitz

THE Hip Sing and On Leong tongs are shooting up each other again, but the public does not know why. It doesn't even know how or who. But the facts are apparent to any one who is an expert on Chinese affairs, like me.

The first tong war occurred in 1925. That was when General Motors got people to freeze their own ice cubes and the team was left holding the tongs. With the introduction of noiseless refrigeration and dehydrated temperature control, the tongs became more bitter. It finally wound up with an On Leong sharpshooter picking off a Hip Sing sharpshooter with a gaiting gun.

The Hip Sing immediately put a price on the head of any On Leong member, at the rate of 2½ cents per queue. As a consequence, the price of chop suey went up. It went so high that Chinese restaurants had to move upstairs to be on a level with the prices. That is why every Chinese restaurant is on the second floor now.

Shortly after this a Chicago policeman was found with his shooting iron concealed in a gaiting bag. This gave the On Leongs an idea and they now carry their guns in laundry bags. The result is the innocent customer must be careful when handling his laundry or he is liable to shoot himself untying a stiff bosom shirt.

The present war started when the On Leongs and Hip Sing attended a get-together banquet to encourage opium smoking. The affair was at the On Leong club house and a visiting Hip Sing made the crack that "Ford McNulty" was engaged to some of the On Leong chaps. This was hotly disputed, the On Leongs claiming it said "Sterling" instead of "Hotel McNulty" on the chopsticks, and then the fight was on.

Two Chinamen were shot in New York, N. Y., for drinking liquor's tea instead of opium. One thing led to another, and another Chin hit the opium houses in San Francisco for wearing rubber heels on his sandals. Trips to Chinatown in buses were cancelled and the general public endured many other hardships. That is when the police stepped in.

Things have quieted down a little now, but you will notice every Chinaman always wears a black silk suit so he will be shot down in his mourning clothes.

The On Leongs and Hip Sing are just big bling their time and the top gets off the beat, and then they will start shooting again. When you next hear the tong strike it will be exactly 7 P. M. This is J. Herman Seidlitz signing off, and we hope you know all about the tong war now.

The Beauty Shop

By Frances Olivier

Spare Your Face

THEY were twins. Both young and both attractive. Carolyn's was the calm serene charm of an English girl. Marie's was the mobile loveliness of April, a sparkling animated beauty.

At length they two grew older, as is the way of all flesh, but only one showed age. Marie, of course. That is the danger of being a beauty. Marie's face was the picture of having an expressive face. The April type is so prone to over-exposure and shower stuff and then in the end get lines in her face.

Far be it from us who date: cold calculating beauties, to advise anybody to be stingy in the matter of facial expression. But as the guardian of your beauty, or counsel to your beauty if you like that better, we must sound more warnings against face making.

Really there is no point, you know, in scowling over every trifling that crosses your path and frowning at every petty problem, nor even in smiling often. There's no beauty wisdom—not to mention any other sort—in laughing at would-be jokes, either. Save your smiles and your frowns and scowls and laughter for things that merit them. Better still, try to get along without the frowns and the scowls altogether. And in this way, dear ones, you SAVE YOUR FACE.

Why should you get lines and wrinkles over everybody's business, while your wiser twin looks on with her unbreakable, Buddha calm? Quite apart from the effect heavy frowning has upon the skin, it certainly does not make for poise. And poise is very important to beauty and to success—social or business.

Efficient beauty treatments do a great deal to iron out the lines and tone the tissues of the too expressive face, but if anything like permanent results are to be achieved, correction must begin from within—in the mind.

Acquiring a more mature point of view on all things will help enormously to save the face from overwork. Curling a too-ready sympathy or rather a misplaced sympathy is a great face-saver, too.

We have no intention of suggesting that you adopt a Chinese mask instead of a face. We'd rather see you have wrinkles than that. You know very well what we mean, moody—we want to see your face WEAR WELL. After all, nature gives only one face to a person—as a rule—and ought to be conserved.

THINK IT OVER

By Alfalfa Smith

WE hear a great deal about PEACE.

We go to church and sing about PEACE.

Would it not be better to think about peace and plenty?

I am not discouraging the idea of having peace, but it seems to me that we should aim for plenty with our longing for PEACE.

Have you PEACE?

Have you plenty?

The negative isn't it time you began to think about peace and plenty?

School nurse says

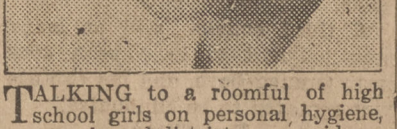

all girls should know this

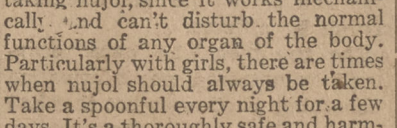

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking Nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when Nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

SHOW SHOWS

Copyright 1929, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"Show of Shows," the Warner Bros. Vitaphone picture was the source for the material on which these stories are based.

SYNOPSIS

Through Harry Cronk, Hollywood press agent, Leo Hanlon meets Queenie Quinn, Warner Studio script girl. Queenie helps him land in the cast of "Show of Shows." After appearing in a number with Monte Blue, Leo is cast in support of John Barrymore. Sid Silver, Broadway comedian, kids him into believing that Barrymore is jealous of his talents. But Leary, another extra, discloses Silver's penchant for clowning.

INSTALLMENT FIVE

"I'll never be anything but a bust in pictures," Leo confided gloomily to Queenie at lunch.

"Don't be discouraged," she counseled, "you'll never know, in this picture, whether you're good or not. Certainly you don't expect to distinguish yourself in your first film with a hundred stars to compete with."

"Oh, it isn't this picture I'm thinking of," said Leo; "it's the jobs to come—if they do come. I'll never be actor enough to get by."

"Well, you have the same chance here. What I'd suggest is that you acquaint yourself fully with the making of pictures. It's astonishing how much there is to them besides acting. Study the sets and try to find out how much they mean to the picture. Talk with the music-writers, the men who contribute

"Did you ever have another job?" countered Queenie.

"Sure. Once I had a job in a brick and tile factory."

"What did they tell you when you reported for work?"

"Well," began Leo, "an unshaven fellow, just reeking with authority, led me to an overheated kiln, indicated a heap of bricks waiting to be loaded into box-cars and informed me that 'there's where you work.' That's all."

"Splendid tutoring," admitted Queenie. "It's about what I'd say. Tell me, how'd you get along in this job?"

"Very well. It was merely a job during vacation. Before I quit to return to college I was a crew foreman."

"Well, you have the same chance here. What I'd suggest is that you acquaint yourself fully with the making of pictures. It's astonishing how much there is to them besides acting. Study the sets and try to find out how much they mean to the picture. Talk with the music-writers, the men who contribute

"Well, all I can say," Queenie told him sternly, "is that you're certainly making a perfect start toward failure, with the attitude you have. Never think yourself inferior. There never was an actor that amounted to anything who didn't begin a scene, whether on the stage or the movie set, absolutely believing himself the best performer within sound of his voice."

"Sounds like conceit," murmured Leo.

"Confidence is what they call it in show business," said Queenie. "Of course," she added, "there has to be something to go with it."

"I know—talent."

"A lot more than talent, too," Queenie went on.

"You mean experience? You know I haven't any of that."

"It'll come, Leo. Now don't," she continued earnestly, "make the mistake so many beginners make. Too lights, the sets, the synchronization of movement and sound. Right here, while you're earning your living, you'll be getting complete schooling. Well," she concluded, rising, "back to the mines. The first lesson."

"And what a lesson!" exclaimed Leo. "I'm off on my home work tonight. Give me a couple of months under your coaching and I'll soon be telling Cronk all about his industry, even if he did toss me into it."

"Perhaps," ventured Queenie. "I was wrong in my suspicion that you lacked confidence."

FLIERS BREAK CROSS NATION HOP RECORD

ed California soil they had shattered the Jacksonville to San Diego record made by Lieut. Jimmy Doolittle in 1922 when he flew the distance in 21 hours and 20 minutes.

William Van Dusen, official N. A. A. timer, said Brock and Schlee averaged approximately 155 miles per hour on their trip.

Oil Stained
Brock and Schlee were a trifle stained by oil and dust from a desert sand storm when they landed but they were in excellent spirits. They laughed when told their arrival was a surprise as San Diego had not expected to sight them for at least another hour.

Check Plane
The two fliers refused invitations to dine until they had checked over every strut and mechanism on their Lockheed plane and had supervised refueling operations for the return trip later in the evening.

After everything appeared to be ship-shape they accepted a meal prepared for them at Rockwell field a United States Army aviation center.

The relatively few persons at the field when Brock and Schlee landed received a thrill when the red plane shot out of the clouds and leveled off to land. It was traveling 85 miles per hour when the wheels touched the earth and taxied a mile before coming to a stop.

LIONS CLUB ENJOYS MEET

Just how successful the members of the Lions club were in a "nut test" given them at yesterday's meeting, will be reported by Postmaster John Miller at the meeting next week.
The test was one used by certain government agencies to determine the general mental status of employees. The test was arranged by Postmaster Miller after the day's program had been unavoidably upset by the absence of Phil Jones, chairman, and of Carl Zamlock, who was to have been the speaker.
Al Furrer, vice-president of the club, presided at the meeting in the absence of Dr. A. B. Hinkley, president. Chairmen for the next month, were announced as follows:
George Upham, Charles Donnelly, Ernest Emmerich and Fred Caudle.
Andy Moran, traffic manager for the Parr Terminal company, was received into the club as a new member.
Harold Felciano, was warmly applauded for his accordion presentations, and a program of march music was presented by Lion's orchestra.

Two Escaped Fresno Felons Held By Police

FRESNO, July 17.—Two of the felons who, with seven others, escaped early yesterday from the Fresno county jail, were captured today.
They were Frank R. Fackler, 30, burglar, and Alex Weckesser, 29, forger.
They were captured by Deputy Constable Tony Avila, near Mendota, 25 miles from here. Avila was "tipped off" by a grocer from whom the two men had purchased supplies.
A third convict, still at large, was believed to have been seen near Oranese Cove, and his capture was reported to be eliminated.
Two Silent
He was Charles Isbell, 49, under sentence to San Quentin prison on a statutory charge.
No trace of the other six convicts was found, despite an intensive search by officers.
The two men who were recaptured volunteered no information concerning whether or not they had outside aid in making their escape, but admitted that the plot was the culmination of several week's planning.
Lookout Kept
The escape was made yesterday morning by picking three cell locks breaking through an 18-inch brick wall, and sliding down a fire hose to the street, two stories below.
Sheriff W. F. Jones was of the opinion that some of the men stole an automobile to make good their escape, and does not believe that they will be re-captured in this vicinity.
Highway patrols kept a sharp lookout for the men, however, and authorities were optimistic as to their ultimate capture.

CLARA IN EAST TO 'FIX-UP' SCRAPE

DALLAS, Tex., June 17.—UP—Clara Bow, the "It" girl of motion picture fame, came to Dallas "to straighten things out with a boy friend and his wife," she said here tonight.

After her secretary, Daisy Devoe admitted that the actress had paid the man's wife $30,000 when she threatened to bring an alienation of affection suit for $150,000 damages, Miss Bow confirmed the report.

"That all happened a year ago and I denied it earlier because I figured it was no one's business but my own," she said.

Not Settled
"But the whole thing isn't settled yet. I came here when I discovered that the wife hadn't received a cent of the money that I paid her. The money belongs to her and I am in Dallas to see that she gets it."

Earlier in the evening the actress had denied a local newspaper's story that she had paid the $30,000.

Met Man
"I met the man on the coast. He was nice looking and had a nice way. I did fall pretty hard," Miss Bow said.

"He told me he had just been married and that his wife didn't understand him. Gosh, I was silly to fall for that line! That was the first time I ever had a date with a married man and, if I had known he had any kids, I wouldn't have had a thing to do with him."

"And then his wife threatens to sue me for $150,000. Why, I never saw that much money in all my life. That's a terrible lot."

Got A Divorce
"I guess they are going to get a divorce in Los Angeles some time in August and I expect I'll see him there. I don't know what will happen then because I'm changeable. Right now I think a lot of another man who is in the pictures."

"The movie guys who hold my contract want me to settle this thing out of court, and if it really comes up, I suppose I'll have to do that," Miss Bow said.

"His folks never did like me. I guess they thought I was a terrible creature because I work in pictures and say 'ain't' all the time. They sent him on a long trip to Europe until it all blew over but I kept getting the longest cablegrams from him. I answered them all, saying I didn't want to have anything more to do with him."

To Return
"I didn't mean to cause anyone trouble and I would give everything I own to get this thing settled without a lot of trouble and noise."

"No one wanted me to come to Dallas but then I just decided to catch a train and get this thing settled for good. I'm supposed to be back on the coast getting ready for my latest picture."

Miss Bow said after she had this "straightened out" she would rest until the last of the week and then return to Hollywood.

STUDIOS KNOW NOTHING OF AFFAIR
HOLLYWOOD, June 17.—UP—Dispatches from Dallas, Tex., to the effect that Clara Bow, red-haired movie star, was involved in difficulties over recent attentions paid her by a married man apparently caused considerable furor at the studio where the "It" girl is under contract.
Paramount officials declared they did not know the present whereabouts of the actress, who completed a picture about a week ago.

STATE SCORES IN TRIAL OF ATTIC MAN

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—UP—A broadside was fired at the defense claim of a "third man" in the Fred Oesterreich murder case today when Roy Klumb, alleged "basement sweetheart" of Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich, widow of the slain man, was called as a state witness at the trial of Otto Sanhuber.

Laughing derisively, Klumb denied he killed Oesterreich. He declared he never had told "at least two persons" in confidence during the last two years that he was responsible for the eight year old slaying.

Sanhuber's attorneys early in the trial pointed a finger of suspicion at a huge man they declared frequented the basement of the Oesterreich home during some of the years Sanhuber assertedly lived in the attic to be near Mrs. Oesterreich with whom he was in love.

Basement Lover
Later it became known that Klumb was the man referred to. He entered the murder case as a prosecution witness who assertedly disposed of a revolver for Mrs. Oesterreich.

The state contends Sanhuber crept from an attic and killed the wealthy garment maker when Oesterreich and his wife were quarreling. After locking the widow in a closet, Sanhuber crept back to the attic, according to the state's case.

The defense intimated it intended to prove that the man responsible was the "basement lover," rather than Sanhuber.

Man Hidden
Hidden in his attic cubby hole after the slaying of Oesterreich, Sanhuber heard the commotion which followed the arrival of police, it was testified at today's session.

Detective Lieutenant Arthur Stoll called as a state witness, declared that Sanhuber told him at lunch soon after his arrest that he listened to the police milling around downstairs.

"I asked him if he heard us trying to force the front door and heard our shouts when we found the body and later discovered Mrs. Oesterreich locked in the closet," Detective Stoll said. "He said he did."

The defense objected to this line of questioning by the state on the contention that it was designed to lead the way for the introduction of a purported confession Sanhuber is declared to have made soon after he was arrested.

Lawyer Hunted
During another part of the trial today attorney Sanhuber is alleged to have used while he lived in the Oesterreich attic to be near Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich, the woman he loved, were introduced. They included papers of August, 1922, the month Oesterreich was murdered and an old toothbrush and lamp black.

A bench warrant for the arrest of Herman Shapiro, Mrs. Oesterreich's former attorney, was issued today when he failed to appear in court.

Shapiro, who swore to an affidavit accusing Sanhuber after the crime had been closed eight years, will be asked to repeat his story, it was said.

Miss Carpenter Wins Degree

The distinction of being one of the first women in the United States to receive the degree of master of business administration is held by Miss Helen Carpenter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Carpenter of Richmond, following the commencement exercises at the Stanford university recently. There were only two girls to receive the degree, the other being Miss Gertrude Benedict, niece of Dean Hotchkiss of Stanford.

Miss Carpenter and Miss Benedict were the first two women to complete the course, it only being taught in two universities in the United States, Harvard and Stanford. Miss Carpenter received her A. B. in 1928 and returned to Stanford for the two year course in business administration.

She is intending to remain in Richmond with her parents this summer and in the fall will go to Los Angeles, where it is understood she has an excellent position offered her.

B. P. Schulberg, general manager of the studios, declined to issue a formal statement but said: "Miss Bow has always been inclined to make extravagant statements. All newspapermen who have interviewed her must know this. As it would appear that this present affair is a personal matter, we see no necessity for making any statement."

Census Count Hits Salaries Of Justices

MARTINEZ, June 17.—UP—The recent census count has aroused considerable furor among constables and justices of the peace in small townships, who are liable, according to the state law which fixes salaries on a population basis, to face a considerable reduction in their pay checks.

Particularly affected by the possible reductions are the justice of the peace and the constable of Pinole township. Justice of the Peace W. P. Terry faces a salary reduction from $125 to $50 and Constable Eugene Shea faces a salary reduction from $180 to $96, following the completion of the census which credited Pinole with a population of 2765 against a population of 3128, ten years ago.

Officials of San Pablo, on the other hand, are confident they can obtain a raise in salary if they are permitted to make another census count. The current census shows a population of 2943 and if a population of 3000 can be shown the salary of the constable will be raised from $96 to $180 and that of the justice of the peace from $50 to $125.

S. A. Communist In Outbreak

BUENOS AIRES, June 17.—UP—An outbreak of Communists in southern Bolivia, near the Argentine border, was reported here today.

R. Pinto Escallier, Bolivian commercial attaché, received messages from Laquica, Argentina, on the Bolivian border, which said Roberto Hinojosa, formerly secretary in the Bolivian Legation at Rio de Janeiro, had attacked the police station at Villazon, Bolivia.

The telegram said Hinojosa, leading a band of communists had overthrown the police at Villazon, and sacked private houses. They then departed toward Tupiza, to the north.

Communications, the telegram said, were interrupted.

MORROW WINS NEW JERSEY BALLOT

NEWARK, N. J., June 18 (Wednesday)—UP—On the basis of a seemingly overwhelming lead established by Dwight Morrow in the early count, Congressman Franklin Fort, just before midnight tonight conceded to Morrow the Republican nomination for senator from New Jersey for which they were contesting.

When the concession was made, with less than 500 of the state's 3328 precincts heard from, Morrow was leading Fort approximately four to one. He was ahead in all of the large populous counties and Fort, smilingly said that his cause seemed hopeless.

Several hours after midnight the count as shown by the United Press stood:

1856 precincts out of 3328 gave Morrow 164,201; Fort 47,421; Joseph Frelinghuysen, 21,720.

Morrow's plurality was 116,780. Former Senator Frelinghuysen when apprised of the situation and given the figures by the United Press likewise conceded Morrow's victory. He sent the following telegram to Morrow:

"You have won a decisive victory. Please accept my heartiest congratulations. I will give you my wholehearted and active support in your campaign for election."

Fort's telegram said:

"Please accept my very sincere congratulations and assurances of my earnest support throughout the election campaign. I have not the slightest doubt that you will be a fine and distinguished addition to the U. S. senate."

Time cut again!

Faster service to Chicago and the Northwest
Effective June 15

Leading the way in a sweeping time cut throughout the Southern Pacific system, the fast schedules of Southern Pacific's Overland Route trains will be again reduced.

"Overland Limited," already faster by hours than any train on any other line between San Francisco and Chicago, will cut its eastbound schedule to 57 hours, 10 minutes. Westbound schedule was cut from 58 to 56 hours on June 1. This fourth time cut since 1926 makes a total reduction of 10 hours, 50 minutes, eastbound; 12 hours westbound.

A new service on the "San Francisco Limited" saves nearly 7 hours from San Francisco to St. Louis. "Gold Coast" will be 2 hours faster to Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago. These trains will now be faster by hours than any train on any other line, San Francisco to St. Louis. "Cascade" of Shasta Route will be 15 minutes faster, San Francisco to Portland; "Shasta" 40 minutes faster; "Klamath" 20 minutes faster.

Every day until Sept. 30, Southern Pacific offers reduced summer roundtrips to the East; return limit Oct. 31.
